16 tal or patient consent for disclosure;

17 (3) an analysis of research on autism and devel-
18 opmental disabilities with respect to the methods of 19 collection and reporting, including whether such re-
20 search was obtained with parental or patient consent
21 for disclosure;

22 (4) an analysis of the need to add education
23 records in the surveillance of autism and other devel-
24 opmental disabilities, including the methodological 25 and medical necessity for such records and the

1 rights of parents and patients in the use of edu-
2 cation records (in accordance with the Family Edu-
3 cational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974);

4 (5) a description of the efforts taken by the 5 Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to uti-
6 lize education records in conducting the surveillance
7 program while obtaining parental or patient consent
8 for such education records, including the outcomes
9 of such efforts;

10 (6) a description of the challenges provided to 11 obtaining education records (in the absence of pa-12 rental or patient consent) for the purpose of obtain-13 ing additional surveillance data for autism and other 14 developmental disabilities; and

15 (7) a description of the manner in which such 16 challenges can be overcome, including efforts to edu-
17 cate parents, increase confidence in the privacy of 18 the surveillance program, and increase the rate of 19 parental or patient consent, and including specific 20 quantitative and qualitative justifications for any 21 recommendations for changes to existing statutory

- 1 authority, including the Family Educational Rights
- 2 and Privacy Act of 1974.

Passed the Senate November 11, 2003.
